IT seems that every time the doctors of the country meet they produce so much encouragement in the battle against disease that surely the millennium, at least in health, should arrive sooner than one might expect.

Social Security Program Is Near End in Congress

Enactment of President Roosevelt's Measure Soon

DEBATE USELESS Senate and House Work to End Session by July 15

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Prodded by leaders bent on ending the congressional session by July 15 if possible, senate and house neared their final votes Tuesday on the administration's social security program and controversial AAA amendments.

Predict Speedy Trial for Waley

Grand Jury to Hear Charges Against Kidnapers Wednesday

TACOMA, Wash.—(AP)—Harmion M. Waley and his wife, accused of kidnaping of George Weyerhaeuser, may be on their way to federal prisons by Saturday under plans by authorities to "clean up the case as quickly as possible."

A federal grand jury summoned by Judge Cushman sits Wednesday and while District Attorney Charles Dennis refuses to comment, it is known that he hopes to have indictments under the Lindbergh kidnap law returned within a day.

Tom Mooney Case Is Reopened by Court

SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP)—Tom Mooney Monday cracked the legal barrier which for 9 years has blocked his fight for freedom when the California Supreme Court, by issuing a writ of habeas corpus, opened its doors to him for the first time.

The court, which previously had held it was powerless to consider the case of the life-term convict, recognized through its action his charges of perjury testimony brought his conviction of the 1935 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing.

Legal observers interpreted the writ, which was made returnable June 27, as throwing the famous case wide open again.

UP 11 FEET IN 2 DAYS Farmers Are Evacuating Homes, Drift Is Unusually Heavy

Torrential rains the past 48 hours has caused J. W. Cronk of the Shreveport weather bureau to issue another flood warning on Red river.

State Streams Rising

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Rain, accompanied by high winds and lightning, continued to fall on Arkansas Tuesday as swollen streams mounted to ward new high stages, poured through broken levees and devastated thousands of acres of fertile land.

At Conway approximately 150 families living in the river bottoms near there evacuated their homes Tuesday morning as backwater spread over a wide area, disrupting highway traffic and inundating farm land.

Highway 64 between Little Rock and Fort Smith was under two feet of water slightly west of Conway.

Farmers trooping into Cotton Plant Tuesday reported crops in the Dixie and Caliche Bay area had been abandoned as the result of the third destructive flood this year.

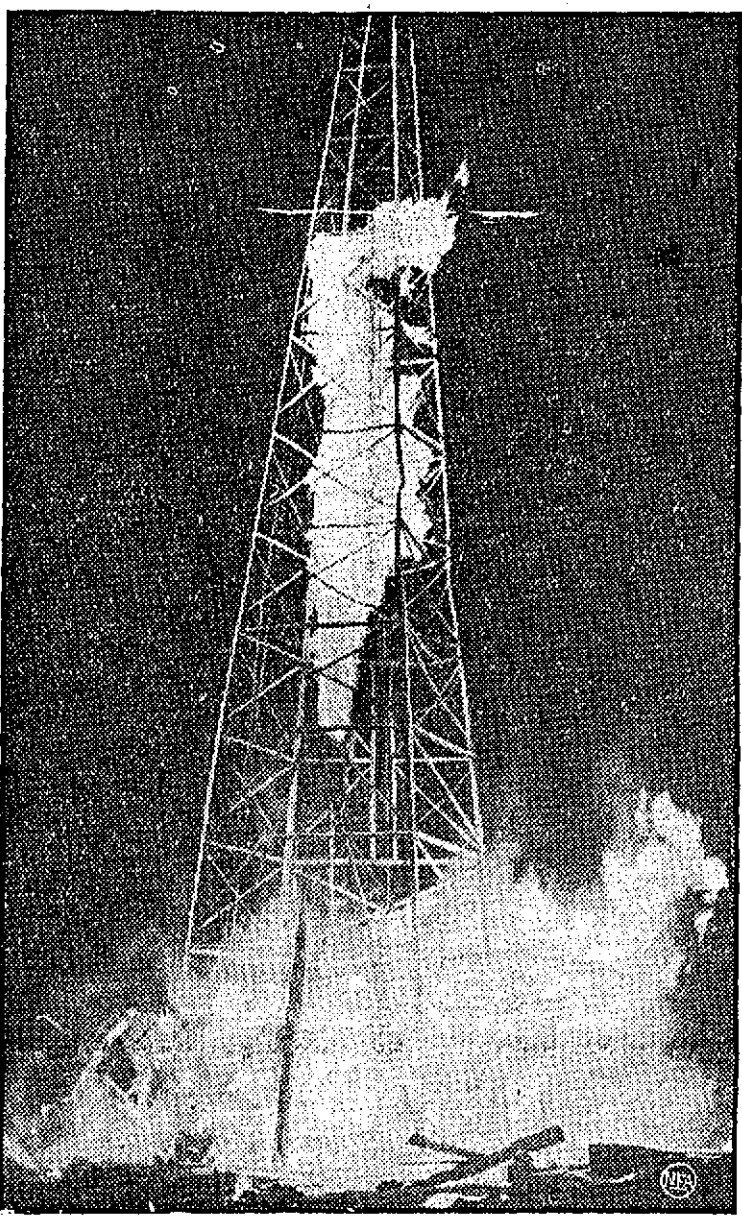

The weather bureau here predicted 31 foot stage for Little Rock as compared with the 33 foot maximum in the disastrous 1927 flood.

A new flood of the Republican river in southwestern Nebraska, added one more death to this spring's total near Benkelman, inundated thousands of acres just replanted after the disastrous floods of two weeks ago, and resulted in emergency plans for serum to fight a spread of smallpox. Seven cases were reported in the vicinity.

The Osage river in Missouri on its fourth flood in three weeks was five feet above flood stage near Tusculuma and the Black and St. Francis rivers in the same state were dangerously

Gasser Turns Into Torch

This gigantic torch, etching the steel skeleton of an oil derrick against the night sky, blazed 80 feet high after a blast that killed two and burned six others at Six Lakes, Mich., in bringing in a huge gasser. The spectacle, photographed just before the derrick's girders crumpled in the intense heat, attracted hundreds of spectators. Fire crews fought vainly to quell the flames.

Death Verdict for Floyd's Associate

Adam Richetti Is Found Guilty in Kansas City Station Murder

KANSAS CITY.—(AP)—Adam Richetti, former running mate of the late Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, was convicted Monday night of the murder of City Detective Frank Herman, one of five men killed in Union station plaza two years ago as gunmen sought to release Frank Nash, recaptured federal convict. The jury recommended that he be hanged.

The sharp-faced, hard-drinking Richetti denied curtly on the witness stand that he was one of the three gunmen involved, or that he was in Kansas City at the time of the shooting.

Government witnesses said he was there with Floyd and Verne C. Miller, a former South Dakota sheriff who turned gangster.

The trio was branded as the machine gun slayers soon after the mass murder. Before the law could catch up with Miller, gangster enemies killed him near Detroit.

Then officers concentrated on Floyd, the bank robber denizen of Oklahoma's Cookton hills. They finally traced him to near East Liverpool, O., but he fled and was shot to death.

Richetti had been arrested the day before in an officer's trap which Floyd escaped. He readily admitted he was Floyd's associate and had been in Kansas City the night before the Union station slaying. But he insisted he was "dead drunk" when he arrived

Sen. Huey Long's Program Rejected

Share-the-Wealth Proposal Is Given Only Scant Consideration

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Huey Long's "share the wealth" program was drowned under a chorus of "noes" in the Senate Monday after the Louisianaian—apparently seeking the foundation for a presidential bid—had offered it as a substitute for the Roosevelt social security plan.

It was the first time Long had been able to get his plan officially before the senate. But it did not stay there long.

As soon as he had concluded his explanation of the plan the senate voted. There was no record ballot, but apparently one other senator, who could not be identified from the gallery, voted with Long.

The senate also rejected without a record vote an amendment by Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, to permit tariff increases to compensate for increased costs of production under the heavy taxes provided in the administration bill.

Long's program called for sizeable pensions to all persons over 60 years of age with an income of less than $500 a year and property valued at less than $2,000. He proposed to finance it with a capital levy that he estimated would raise $165,000,000 and whittle private fortunes down to a maximum of $2,500,000.

Long followed Senator Hastings, Republican, Delaware, a conservative Easterner, who contended that the Roosevelt program was impossible grandiose and beyond the nation's economic capacity. Long said it was nothing but a "pooper bill."

Long was dressed in his usual flamboyant manner, with a sand-colored suit and pink shirt, but he dropped most of his acrobatics and backwoods mannerisms to deliver a serious speech as the senate has heard him make.

He was challenged quickly, however, by Senator Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, a conservative Easterner from the president's own party.

300 Convicts in Uprising Tuesday at Kansas Prison

15 Officers Held as Hostages, Telephone Lines Disrupted

PURPOSE UNKNOWN Plans Made to Use Tear Gas in an Effort to Quell Riot

LANSING, Kan.—(AP)—Holding 15 mine officers as hostages, more than 300 Kansas state penitentiary convicts mutinied early Tuesday in the prison coal mine. All telephone communications with the strikers, shortly after they went down into the mine at 7 o'clock.

Warden Lacey M. Simpson's office said the purpose of the mutiny was not known yet, as no demands had been received from the self-entitled convict-miners.

Plans were made to send officers, armed with gas, into the mine.

The 15 mine officers held were without arms, the warden's office said, so unless firearms had been smuggled into the prison the mutineers were without weapons other than clubs, knives and other such implements.

One of the most serious mine riots began nearly eight years ago when, on June 24, 1927, 328 convicts mutinied and stayed 720 feet down in the mine for 72 hours because they were denied cigarettes.

After a fight in which lumps of coal, clubs, picks and lanterns were used, loyal convicts overcame the rebel strikers, released 14 imprisoned guards and ended the riot.

Robert H. Murray, mine superintendent, and three top officers went into the mine to contact the prisoners. After reaching the bottom of the shaft of the mine to talk to the convicts.

R. D. Tayne, secretary to Warden Simpson, said there had been no trouble before the strike and that its cause had not been ascertained.

Long's Foes Block State Court Trial

U. S. Judge Issues Writ in Sullivan, Sewerage Board Cases

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—Two of Senator Huey P. Long's bitter political foes, faced with state court litigation instituted by Long's Louisiana administration, turned to the federal court here Monday in an effort to remove the proceedings from the jurisdiction of state tribunals.

Federal court writs were issued in both instances staying further action in the state courts.

While unrelated, the two cases, that of the state against Col. John P. Sullivan, dispenser of the national administration's Louisiana patronage and arch Long foe, and that of the state attorney general against the New Orleans Sewerage and Water Board, were called simultaneously in different divisions of Orleans parish District Court.

American Clipper Back at Honolulu

Successfully Makes First Lap of Return Trip From Midway Island

ALAMEDA, Calif.—(AP)—The Pan-American Clipper plane landed at Honolulu at 10:58 p. m. Central Standard time Monday to complete its return flight from Midway island, the "airway's" base was informed by radio.

The 1,323-trip from Midway requiring 10 hours and four minutes, as against the time of nine hours and 13 minutes made in the flight to Midway Saturday.

For a portion of Monday's cruise, Capt. Edwin Musick and his crew "flew blind," relying entirely upon instruments to set their course.

The Clipper will fly from Hawaii to California soon to prepare for further test flights, which are expected to take them still further west to Wake Island, by way of Hawaii and Midway.

Mixup Here Halts $2,000 Payroll on Erosion Project

Work operations and a $2,000 local weekly payroll at the CCC camp, six miles south of Hope, was stopped late Monday by Captain G. E. Miller on receipt of orders from Major M. R. Baer, district commander.

Probable cancellation of the camp was anticipated Tuesday by Captain Miller, due to objections against location of a negro company at the camp.

The project, first obtained as an erosion control camp with World War veterans of Hempstead county and southwest Arkansas to be employed, was later changed to a negro camp. The erosion camp was then transferred to near Magnolia.

Selection of the Hempstead county camp for negroes was made by Governor Futrell recently after a local delegation called at his office in Little Rock and asked for a negro camp in Hempstead county.

Project Is Muffed Apparently a misunderstanding occurred. The local delegation, it was pointed out, was under the impression that Hempstead county could obtain both a white and negro camp. The result, however, was the transfer of Hempstead's original camp to Magnolia and the assignment of a negro project to this county.

Acting under government instruction, Captain Miller discharged approximately 85 local employees, all drawing approximately 75 cents per hour. The weekly payroll, Captain Miller said, was only two cents under $2,000 per week.

Captain Miller said that he would retain a night watchman, and would await instructions for disposition of all material on hand. In the meantime, Major Baer conferred with Governor Futrell in Little Rock and told the executive that loss of the camp to Hempstead county and to Arkansas appeared probable, as the Seventh Corps Area with headquarters in Omaha would probably locate the camp in one of seven other southern states.

Buildings Nearly Completed Captain Miller told The Star that two of the buildings at the site had been completed and that four other buildings were 80 per cent complete. Work operations would have continued about six weeks longer had construction not been stopped, after local politicians muffed the project.

Captain Miller said that Hempstead county had until Wednesday to officially reject the negro camp. He pointed out that in the event the county accepted it, it would mean that approximately 200 local negroes would be taken off the relief rolls and placed at the camp.

"CCC camps are a substantial asset to any section, and if the people here do not want the camp, then it will be moved to another state. Uncle Sam is not going to get down on his knees and ask the people to take it. Other states will be glad to have the camp," Captain Miller declared.

In the event of cancellation, an outside crew of men will be sent here to dispose of the buildings and material on hand.

Captain Miller asked that all employees having checks due them to address him at 521 South Main street and their compensation would be allowed and mailed immediately.

Strike Proposals Are Called Unfair

Governor Says Trams to Stay in Barns Until Feud Ended

OMAHA.—(AP)—Omaha's military dictator, Governor R. L. Cochran Tuesday blasted as "unreasonable" a counter arbitration plan of the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway company and threw his 1800 national guardsmen into a siege against the company's trams. Tuesday was the third full day under martial law.

Cochran demanded full arbitration. Labor accepted early Monday. After an ignored deadline brought Cochran's order to run the trams off the streets, the company submitted a substitute proposal substantially the same as it presented when the strike began last April 20.

"This is no answer to my request," the governor bluntly told the five company directors who bore the message. "For the present the street cars stay in the barn."

The governor, however, avoided defining the proposal as "defiance to his peace program."

He declined to comment on the next step if the company refuses to modify its program. Sunday night, however, he said if either party declined his terms it would be "responsible to the military authorities."

The company balked at even discussing a closed shop, re-employment of 68 of its 288 striking employees, or re-issuing of new seniority rules. It charged the 58 men with complicity in the violence, and claimed it owed duty to protect loyal employees in emergency privileges.

Arbitration of wage scales, the company said, would be accepted, but only as to use of income above operating expenses and taxes. It has claimed a deficit for several years.

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—Higher prices prevailed at the start of trading in the cotton market with the opening sales from four to seven points above the previous close. The early advance was based on the bullish weather reports from the belt. Two much rain and damage to cotton lands by floods were reported from many quarters.

July opened six points higher at 11.37. October was up seven points at 11.28 and December up five points at 11.29.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, three to five higher on predictions of further rains in the western belt and spot house buying. July 11.60; October 11.30; December 11.34; January 11.36; March 11.40; May 11.47.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Epidemic of Measles Now Widespread.

Measles is apparently more widespread now throughout America than at almost any other time since infectious diseases began to be brought under control.

A highly contagious disease, measles begins with an inflammation of the eyes, sneezing, fever, some hoarseness, and a chilly sensation.

Soon so-called "koplik" spots can be noted in the mouth. These small, white spots with bluish centers appear on the inside of the cheeks and in the throat. When the rash breaks out they usually vanish.

The measles rash is not a brilliant red like that of scarlet fever; it is of dark red color, and usually appears on the third or fourth day, to spread rapidly from face and neck all over the body.

If your child has measles, separate him from the rest of the family. If possible, he should have a room to himself, with a bathroom that he alone can use. The child must be kept in bed as long as there is a fever, and for a few days afterward, until the doctor says it is safe for him to get up.

It is advisable to protect the child's eyes from the light. This does not mean, however, that his room is to be kept absolutely dark. If he is given smoked or dark glasses to wear, the room may be kept as light as usual.

His diet should be light, with fruit and cooked vegetables. Large amounts of water and of citrus fruit drinks, such as orangeade and lemonade, should be taken regularly.

The principal danger of measles lies in possible complications. When patients die of this disease, the cause is usually secondary pneumonia or tuberculosis, secondary infection of the tonsils, nose, throat, or ears, or, sometimes, from abscesses or inflammation in the glands of the neck.

Watch closely for any of these serious symptoms. If they appear, notify your doctor immediately, so that the patient may have the best possible medical attention.

Fortunately, when a child once has measles, he is not likely to have it again, although second attacks are known to occur now and then.

A little shy of 120 years ago, Great Britain, finding herself the leading breeding nation of the world and sorely in need of a stable currency, adopted the gold standard. Today, America has become the leading creditor nation and, particularly until the collapse of 1929, found herself draining large sums of gold from other countries in payment for the goods she was exporting. Summer Sweethearts

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KATHARINE STRYKIELSKI, 20 and beautiful, allows her emotions to rule when she marries MICHAEL HEATHCOTE, young riding instructor who comes into a title and fortune. Katharine's father is rich and her stepmother is ennobled.

The night following his marriage Michael is injured in a traffic accident and when he regains consciousness he remembers a fiancée, Katharine, and a man named VIOLET MERSEY, who he has deserted her. She has to leave for New Mexico and her friend, VIOLET MERSEY, agrees to engage a lawyer in her absence to arrange an annulment of the marriage.

Dr. JOHN KAYE, an old friend, sees Katharine off on her trip. He tells her he has always loved her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXV

VIOLET MERSEY was wedding her rosebud when she saw Michael ride by. It was the first time she had caught a glimpse of him since his accident and since Katharine's amazing disclosure. Katharine had been gone two days now. Stanley Mersey was taking steps toward the end the girl was now so anxious to attain—the annulment of that astonishing marriage ceremony a few weeks before.

"The man must be a most horrible villain," Violet said to herself, prodding at the earth about the roots of a Dorothy Perkins. "And yet—he doesn't look like one in the least." She was rather ashamed of her earlier enthusiasm for Michael.

The whole thing was definitely queer. First the boy had engaged himself to Sally Moon. "Old Ruthie" down at the Innickock News had been calling up every day to see if he had any date to give her. She was anxious to run the story of the wedding, but she doesn't dare say a word about it as long as I tell her to hold off. And probably everyone's talking about me. Probably they say the thing's off."

"I have my reasons," Mr. Moon said solemnly. If Sally weren't so wrapped up in her own affairs, he thought, she would be able to figure out the problem for herself. He wanted all the votes he could get for village trustee and the election was next week. With a big wedding going on and Sally insisting on getting all her flowers and catering things from the city instead of patronizing the local tradesmen (who were sure to be antagonized), the election would be certain to go against him. He knew Innickock. He hadn't been president of the bank for 20 years without learning a good deal about the way the minds of the villagers worked.

He had several reasons for not telling Sally this. The first was that she would not consider the argument weighty enough. She had her own way of over-riding all his objections. The second was that an air of mystery impressed her more than straightforwardness. She was inclined to be a bit mysterious herself. "Sneaky," Mr. Moon called it. Like her mother's people. None of the Moons had been sneaky—all open and aboveboard like him. Still, a man had to protect his interests against the depredations of his womenfolk. Women had no consciences whatever when they wanted their own way.

He wouldn't be sorry to see Sally married. She'd been a bit of a problem since her mother died. Cocktails, flirtations, all kinds of craziness, her father told himself. This young fellow was good with horses. Maybe he'd hold the whip hand over Sally as well. He chuckled at the thought. "What are you chortling about?" Sally wanted to know rather angrily. Really her father was being too stuffy about this. It made her tired. But since he held the purse strings there was no fighting him. And she wanted a trousseau that would put everyone's eye out.

"Nothing," he changed the subject hastily. "You going into town today to shop?" That was always a good way to divert her. Her black eyes sparkled at the thought of trying on clothes, of watching mannequins parade because this time she was going to the really expensive places and have the very best, and of choosing hats and shoes and colorful stockings to supplement those already piled in boxes and bags in her room. Whatever you might say about Daddy Moon, Sally reflected, you couldn't accuse him of being stingy.

SHE had read in last night's newspaper of Katharine Strykieski's departure for the west. And she had felt a tiny prick of relief. While Katharine had been around Sally hadn't felt entirely easy about Michael. He had been restive at times. Sally had suspected in the beginning that he was attracted to Katharine, although why anyone would prefer that cool young woman to his own rather buxom self, Sally could not imagine.

Well, Michael was more tractable since he'd been ill. He really seemed to depend on her these days. She bossed him around as she hadn't dared to do before.

Her cousin, Annabel, was coming on from Syracuse for the wedding. And Michael had been so vague about providing a best man that Sally had wired Annabel to bring her fiancé (expenses paid) to serve. Annabel's young man was a fledgling mining engineer with a brand new diploma. Sally, marrying a title, felt very superior.

Well, Annabel and Joseph would arrive on Tuesday, and they would have a rehearsal Tuesday night. Daddy Moon had agreed to that. The wedding would be on Wednesday, and invitations would go out by hand the day before. It was, Sally told herself, a pretty queer way to do things, but her father had some crazy notion in his mind. It didn't do to argue with him when he was like this.

She longed to shout the news from the housetops. But she didn't dare. Well, all the old ones who had been so nasty to her would know soon enough. Let them gnash their teeth then. See how they liked it.

She'd snub them if she ever met them on the street. Another thing she had to do today. She had to stop at Tiffany's and choose a platinum band that Michael could pay for later. He didn't want to go into the city, she said. She was having to arrange everything. She had even sent out a tailor who was to measure him for correct morning clothes.

She'd thought of everything. There couldn't possibly be a hitch in the proceedings now. A week from Wednesday she would be Lady Carden.

Pitts Gets Chance to Play Baseball

Commissioner Landis Authorizes Former Convict to Join Albany Club

CHICAGO—(AP)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who was a federal judge won fame for his gentle treatment of the humble, Monday as baseball's high commissioner, opened the game's gates to Edwin C. (Alabama) Pitts.

In a voluminous decision, Landis ruled that Pitts, who hit the sports pages as a football and baseball star at Sing Sing prison, might play with the Albany club of the International League. He insisted, however, that the 24-year-old parolee's contract contain a clause limiting his activity to regular games of the schedule.

For Pitts' own good, and apparently to be certain that hooliganism be eliminated as far as possible, the commissioner, who was not present when the decision was made public, stipulated that the athlete must not appear in, or at, exhibition games. Landis remained in his hotel suite, where he has been confined for the past three weeks because of illness, while his secretary, Leslie M. O'Connor, handed copies of the ruling to reporters.

Neither Pitts nor any representatives of the Albany club was present. Landis having decided to handle the case without a hearing.

While the commissioner's action overruled the decision by Judge William G. Bramham of Durham, N. C., president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, ruling body of minor circuits, and the association's executive committee, he did agree with their stand.

He pointed out that Bramham and the committee had ruled only on the question of whether an ex-convict might play in organized baseball. Landis said he had, under the major-minor agreement, no authority to rule on decisions of the executive committee of the National Association.

And in this situation, reputable people have expressed to me their belief that there has been complete reformation of Pitts' character.

"Solely for these reasons, Pitts" will be allowed to play, on condition that a new contract be executed by the Albany club and Pitts containing a covenant, that during the year 1935 Pitts shall appear only in regular league games and shall not appear in or at exhibition games, this condition being imposed because it is distinctly in Pitts' interest that mere notoriety be not exploited and capitalized."

Sing Sing Inmate Elated OSSING, N. Y.—Telephoning from Albany to Mrs. Lewis E. Lawes, wife of the warden, at Sing Sing, Edwin C. (Alabama) Pitts, former prisoner and star athlete, was the first to break the news to the institution that Judge K. M. Landis, supreme regulator of professional baseball, lifted the ban and decided Pitts may play. Lawes was out of town when word came.

Mrs. Lawes, after Pitts rang off, had the operator of the inside radio system broadcast it through amplifiers and earsets to prisoners in all departments. Even Mrs. Eva Coo and 11 men under sentence of death, as well as time servers, were elated to hear the news. Sing Sing's populace was intensely interested in Pitts' welfare.

Talking to Mrs. Lawes, Pitts said: "They told me I can play. I'll do my best. I felt all the time Judge Landis would help me. I'm more than grateful to him. I am more than thankful to Warden Lawes. I appreciate everything."

Kathleen Wells, for instance, says that plump vaseline is her special standby. She has used it for years, not only on her eyelashes at bedtime and during the day, but across her lips after lipstick has been applied, allowed to set and then wiped off. She puts it on her eyebrows, too, and attributes to this their luxurious growth.

Miss Wells carries vaseline in her handbag. She says she hasn't as yet found a special container for it, so she simply keeps refilling a little eye-shade box. Naturally, since she puts such a tiny bit on her lips and no more than that on her lashes and eyelids, one box lasts for many weeks.

At home, she uses a little brush to put the vaseline on her brows. Incidentally, Kathleen touches her lashes with this same brush before she clamps them into a metal curler. It encourages their growth and prevents the curler from breaking them.

"Don't forget that vaseline will remove callouses from elbows and keep them soft and smooth," the little singer adds. "I put a little of this inexpensive beauty preparation on my

Pale, Nervous, Run Down People Who Have Lost All Appetite and Ambition

And Feel the Need of More Strength and a Quick Effective Toning Up of the Nerves and Body Will Find Nothing to Compare With New IRON TONIC.

Why should any nervous, run-down, over-worked, ambitious man or woman continue to try and hide their weakness from the world when Clements' Tonic today, in three days you'll step livelier, your eyes will brighten, you'll start to grow younger instead of older and soon you will regain the old time vigor and confidence and no one will dare to suggest that you are "Down and out" or have "Lost your grip." Be strong. Be vigorous—get back your old time ambition and be your own nappy, contented self again. Clements' Tonic is guaranteed by Ward & Son to do just what is claimed for it or money back.

In times like these no state can help the man; These are the times the man must help the state. Think out his problems, set his own house straight, Plan for himself, and do the best he can. We must begin again where we began, Back where the individual was great, And by his own effort fashioned his own fate. In times like these, when politicians please With promises the state the load will bear, We must recall our strength is never there. That walls make houses and that roots make trees, Think hard, work hard, find opportunities Where there seems none, do each equal share The wall to strengthen and the corner square, And men and nations come through times like these.—Selected.

Revival Starts Nazarene Church

Mrs. Eupha D. Beasley Is in Charge Preaching Services

An old fashioned revival is featuring the opening of the First Church of the Nazarene at Fifth and South Elm streets.

Mrs. Eupha D. Beasley is bringing the messages each night and Prof. L. C. Messer will have charge of the singing. The subject for Tuesday night will be "Can the Modern Church Have a Revival?"

Special singing by the Vaughn quartet, with Miss Minnie Lee Jones, an accomplished musician, at the piano.

Services will begin at 8 o'clock.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

Four's a Crowd at Bride's First Dinner Party

Every bride returns to her dear little nest and faces the big problem of how to pay back her obligations. She owes everybody and the new budget is already strained to the breaking point.

I would advise her to begin her entertaining with a tea. Keep it simple and invite a lot of people so you won't have to worry about everybody having somebody congenial to talk to.

Luncheon is next, and here's a tip. Select your menu to fit your most attractive dishes. For example, if you

Tomorrow's Menu
Breakfast: Sliced pineapple, crisp broiled bacon, eggs fried in bacon fat, graham muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Casserole of cauliflower and cheese, new cabbage and carrot salad, toasted muffins, milk, tea.

Dinner: Corned beef, potatoes cooked with meat, green onions creamed on toast, apple dumplings, milk, coffee.

have some particularly beautiful cream soup plates, let the first course be cream of mushroom soup, serve a salad with rolls for the second course and finish with dessert and coffee. Don't have more than eight or twelve at such an affair.

Keep Dinner Party Small
When it comes to the first dinner party my advice is to keep it small. If you have no help in the kitchen, dinner for four will be easy to handle alone, and there will be no danger of your getting flustered about things. Remember this sort of thing is new to your husband, too, and he's going to be in the twilight when it comes to serving the roast.

Talk everything over with him. Men have very definite ideas about foods, and it pays to cater to their likes and dislikes. I went to a dinner one time where the host ate only his soup and dessert—he didn't like lamb, never ate green peas and loathed jelly salad. Men generally like simpler and heartier food than women, and I think dinners should be planned to please the men.

Roast beef always is a safe choice. For a dinner for four I'd select a fillet of beef. Have the butcher lard it for you and roast it in an open pan in a hot oven. After the first twenty minutes reduce heat to 300 degrees F. and continue roasting. Allow twenty minutes to the pound. Sprinkle with salt and pepper when roast is put in the oven.

New potatoes in parsley butter or in cream sauce can be kept hot over hot water while the first course is being served and are seasonal for this time of year.

If you serve potatoes in a cream sauce, serve a plain buttered vegetable. Buttered cauliflower, buttered asparagus or buttered green beans are excellent vegetables to serve with beef.

Mixed Greens for Salad
For a salad nothing can excel a crisp green mixed salad—candy endive, firm head lettuce, tender romaine and watercress. A plain French, Roquefort cheese or French dressing to which minced parsley, finely chopped red pepper and finely chopped hard cooked eggs have been added are all good to serve with greens.

Ice cream and cake is an easy answer for the dessert, although if you have mastered pie baking, nothing ever makes a greater hit with men.

For the first course serve a fruit cup if you don't plan to have fruit dessert. Otherwise serve either hot

FHA Head Gives Aim of Program

Early Revival of Private Building on Sound Basis Is Theme

WASHINGTON—The principal aim of the home-financing program of the Federal Housing Administration is to bring about an early revival of private-home building activity on a healthy, enduring basis, according to Acting Administrator Stewart McDonald, who considers that increases in building during the first months of 1935 indicate a "splendid improvement."

The Acting Administrator pointed to first-quarter increases of 131 percent over 1934 in the number of families housed in new buildings as shown by building permits for more than 700 cities. He also considers it significant that contracts awarded for residential building in April 1935 were higher than in any other month since 1931.

"We have reached the point at last," Mr. McDonald said, "where the pent-up demand has pushed open the gates of the abnormally low residential building of the last 4 or 5 years, which has been inadequate to take care of the needs of increasing population or to take the place of old and obsolete structures which have been passing out of use."

Other indications of improvement are mentioned by Mr. McDonald: General improvement in the home-financing situation; virtual elimination of usurious and unsound mortgage practice by the establishment of the long-term, fully amortized mortgage as provided in the mutual mortgage insurance plan of the Federal Housing Administration; the institution of sound methods of appraisal valuation; and the application of certain elemental standards in site planning, design, and construction of new buildings.

It is the opinion of Mr. McDonald that private capital to a degree has become convinced that residential mortgages, particularly with the protection afforded by the mutual mortgage insurance plan, offer a unique field for the profitable and secure investment of funds.

"Through the activities of 7,900 local better-housing campaign committees the American public is becoming more and more housing conscious," Mr. McDonald said. He approximates the national housing deficiency at more than a million homes, which he describes as a potential market for building and repair stimulus in the future, with attendant benefits to the construction industry, architects, building constructions, and thousands of related lines of human effort.

or jellied bouillon. If it's a very hot evening jellied bouillon is preferable. With it serve crisp radishes and celery and big ripe olives.

Of course, you will use all the wedding presents of silver and glassware and china.

Soft glowing candlelight flatters every woman and you can scarcely be too lavish in their use. Use tall tapers so that the lighted tip will not shine in the eyes of any guest.

To Ask Rehearing In Sales Tax Case

Attorney Says Court's Ruling on Motion Probable July 1

LITTLE ROCK—A motion for rehearing of the Arkansas Supreme Court decision upholding constitutionality of the sales tax will be filed Wednesday or Thursday, H. T. Harrison, attorney, representing J. B. Hall intervenor in the original test suit, said Monday night.

The motion probably will be submitted to the court Monday and a final ruling can be made July 1.

Mr. Harrison said the motion was not an attempt to delay the effective date of the sales tax but represented an effort to give the court an opportunity to extend and correct its sales tax decision, which the motion will contend was not in accord with previous decisions.

Revenue Commissioner Earl R. Wiseman said he was going ahead with plans for collecting the tax beginning July 1, and would be ready to begin collections immediately after the constitutionality is decided finally by the Supreme Court.

He said he would seek legal authority Tuesday, to establish whether the tax can be made effective at Monday midnight in the event the Supreme Court overrules the motion for rehearing July 1.

Flood Warning

bankful after a rain of 4.56 inches in 24 hours.

Cloudbursts in eastern Colorado, another scene of serious floods early in June, sent streams out of their banks. At Bethune, a steel railway bridge was washed away. The Little Arkansas and North Fork rivers, however, subsided after overflows near Salida.

The Colorado river estimated to have done more than $2,500,000 damage in Austin alone, swept into La Grange, Texas, with its crest expected during the night. More than 200 men patrolled two dams above Gonzales on the Guadalupe river reinforcing levees with sandbags.

The 800 residents of Gardner, near Joliet, Ill., fled their homes after a 10-inch rainfall filled basements with water, covered streets and washed small buildings from their foundations. Heavy rains over that state caused further delay to already late farm work.

A tornado which skipped along the Hughes-Sully county border in South Dakota injured five persons and caused several thousand dollars of property loss.

Youths receiving relief aid at the University of Southern California average higher in their studies than those possessing independent financial means.
